The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-7, 11-14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Urfer et al (US 4,780,250) in view of Landoll (US 4,228,277).

Urfer et al teach detergent compositions (title). Surfactants are specified (column 1 lines 61 et seq.) Water is disclosed (column 4 lines 38-43). Viscosifying agents are disclosed (column 5 line 25). However, Urfer et al does not teach hydrophobically modified polysaccharides.

Landoll teach cellulose ethers with a C10-C24 long chain alkyl group with an improved viscosifying effect (abstract). Hydroxypropyl cellulose is disclosed (column 2 line 7).

IT would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to use cellulose ethers modified with a C10-C24 long chain alkyl group in the composition of Urfer et al to achieve the beneficial effect of an improved viscosifying effect in view of Landoll.

Claims 1-7, 11-14, 16, 18-21, 23-31, 33 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. In claim 1 "household care ingredient" is vague because the metes and bounds of the specific ingredients are unclear. In their examples, applicants provide 26 lists of ingredients for a variety of household care products. However, it is unclear what ingredients are critical to each particular household care product. Thus "household care ingredient" could be interpreted broadly to include water.

No claims allowed.
